Railbanking in Columbia Part 1: Rogers St. to I-70

Railbanking is the means to preserve rail corridors when the land is no longer needed or used for railroads. Railbanked land is effectively “on loan.” It can return to railroad use if needed in the future, but in the meantime, a local government agency serves as the “trail sponsor” and the land can be used for other purposes, such as bike and pedestrian recreation and commuter trails. For example, the Missouri Department of Natural Resources sponsors the Katy Trail State Park as a railbanked trail.

We have an abandoned railroad right of way in Columbia. The Colt railway from Columbia to Centralia is owned by the City of Columbia. Until 2015, the railway was used to bring coal to the Municipal Power Plant just North of the Business Loop. Since the power plant was converted to burn natural gas, there is no need for the rail roadbed.

The City of Columbia wants to convert the abandoned right of way between Rogers St (basically, behind Walt's Bike Shop) and Brown Station Road to a “rail with trail” facility. The trail would have full-width lanes for bikes and pedestrians alongside any trains that might eventually use the rail part.

The first phase of the project would convert the right-of-way between Rogers Street and I-70 to a rail-with trail, or a trail-only corridor where the tracks have already been removed. Since railbanked corridors must keep the existing infrastructure, two existing bridges would need attention.

Abutments

supporting the bridge over I-70 will be replaced as part of the Improve I70 project. The bridge will be converted to a pedestrian/bike bridge (that still could be used for rail traffic if improved. The bridge over Business Loop 70 will be converted to a pedestrian/bike bridge, as the existing bridge won't support loaded rail cars safely.

If approved, the project should be completed sometime after 2030. Bike Club members and others can get more information and voice their opinions (including rail-to-trail vs. the rail-with-trail options) at <https://beheard.como.gov/colt-railroad-railbanking>.

What we saw on our Vacation :

This photo was hanging in the hall of the lodge at Mammoth Hot Springs Hotel in Yellowstone.

The photograph captures members of the 25th Infantry Bicycle Corps, an all-Black unit known as the "Buffalo Soldiers". The men, posing with their bicycles on the travertine layers at the Minerva Terrace at Mammoth Hot Springs. The photo was taken in 1896 during an expedition where the corps traveled from Fort Missoula, Montana, to Yellowstone Park, on bicycles.
